

The only thing we're apt to break is a safety record.

No one handles vessels more carefully than Crowley. And the fact that we operate the most modern fleet of tractor tugs on the West Coast is only half the story. For starters, our vice president of environmental, safety and quality assurance sets high standards for both our tugs and crews. Under his direction, our vessel captains make sure that their tug meets its assigned set of safety protocols. And all Crowley employees undergo rigorous training to keep them updated on the latest safety procedures. But don't just take our word for it. The Alyeska Pipeline Service Company's Ship Escort/Response Vessel System has recently recognized us for achieving a perfect safety record in Alaska. They also lauded us for our new Environmental,

Safety and Quality Assurance Management System, which meets and integrates four internationally certified management codes: the International Safety Management Code, the American Waterways Operators Responsible Carrier program and ISOs 9000 and 14000. In addition, Crowley earned the U.S. Coast Guard's William M. Benkert Award for environmental excellence in 2000.

For your next ship assist or escort into or out of San Diego, Los Angeles/Long Beach, Tacoma, Seattle or North Puget Sound, go with the company who's got it together. For more information, call Todd Busch with Crowley's Ship Assist & Escort Services at 1-800-248-8632. Or visit www.crowley.com.
