Equipment Repositioning Charge

On a Southbound shipment, if a shipper performs their own inland transportation and returns a loaded container to a terminal, container yard or rail ramp other than the one where the empty container was originally picked up, a $1500 equipment repositioning charge will apply.

On a Northbound shipment, if a shipper performs their own inland transportation and returns an empty container to a terminal, container yard or rail ramp other than the one where the loaded container was originally picked up, a $1500 equipment repositioning charge will apply unless carrier has provided prior written agreement to allow the empty to be returned elsewhere.
