

Interception of Centor sp in a Shipment of Thyme from Colombia.

According to the available national pest databases, this detection was the first for the genus at U.S. ports. The current literature points to 3 described species within the genus, all of which are distributed only within Brazil. The scientific literature does not describe the biology and host plants of any of the species; neither does it point to Centor as an economically significant genus.